Bharatnatyam presented by Y. G. Srilatha, from Bangalore, Karnataka. The theme was Ganga and Bhoomi, respected as the Goddesses of Water and Land, are the main highlights of this performance. The sanctity and purity of the two mothers of the world are illustrated through various incidences taken from our puranas, mythological stories, upanishads and other epics. Krishna himself worships Ganga and he saved the water from the venomous snake Kalinga, he prays the Govardhana Giri hill and in this context worships Bhoomi Devi. Now, the land and water have been spoilt due to afforestation, Mining, hazardous smoke and elements from factories. We have to build a social awareness in people that we are the main causes for all these problems and we need to take suitable measures to protect our land, water and air. Steps to eradicate these problems and to have a Green Environment and a healthy environment are the main aspects of this performance.
